Amien Harisen

Fulltime gamer , part time cybersecurity enthusiast, and do training for fun and profit

What happen in my mind, as a Trainer

A Cybersecurity Trainer POV

Before I say yes to the class

_____

Checklist

- What class it is ?
  - Technical
  - Non technical
- How many persons in one class
  - <= 5
  - > 5
- How much banana can I get

Pre Class Assessment

Checklist

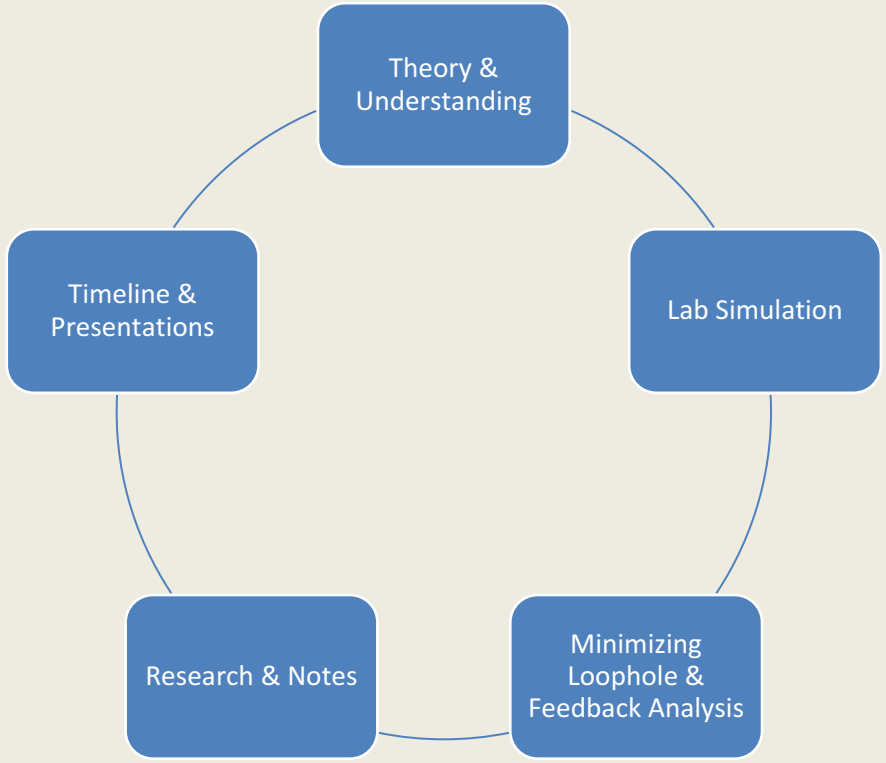
What is the attendant background

What is the goal of the class

What is the time schedule of the class

Pre Class Preparation

Pre Class Preparation



Class Delivery

Perception & Communication Mastery

- Master your own emotion and moods, to control others
- How do we communicate and deliver our expertise so people can understand
- Coach both the class and individual at the same time
- Small talks matter, get close to each class attendance (movies, trends, etc)
- Get a whole stocks of a jokes, it helps !

Technical Delivery

- Get a deep knowledge and understanding of the theory you are going to delivered
- Get multiple iteration of any technical things you are going to delivered
- Get a lot of creativity when delivering the technical (interactive method are always helpful, e.g YouTube, Labs Hands On, Simulation, Interactive Quiz, etc)
- Go extra mile on the hands on, because you will never know what happen!

Time Management

- Get a hold of your time table
- How long should a chapter would be
- How many jokes one day
- How many small talks for one day
- How long does a lab lasts, 2 labs, 3 labs, and so on
- What if they still didn’t get it?
- How long coffee breaks take?
- How long lunch break goes?

Always be patient, control your emotion

There are NO stupid student, there are only impatient teacher

Post training delivery (daily)

- Evaluate your strength and weakness
- Get feedback from your student
- Ask them, and deliver!
- Study and close that ducking loophole!
- Simulate the lab hands on x times until you can deliver it with your eyes closed (e.g metasploitable 1 2 3,)

Post training delivery (end of class)

- Did you get what they want ?
- Did you deliver all the feedback points?
- Did they satisfy?
- Ask for feedback

Going extra mile?

Always push your limits

Training Abroad 101

- Master your presentation in English
- Confident are your deadliest weapon
- Master your jokes and small talks (Russell Peters and Dad Jokes are a starter)
- Don’t be such a py and be tough
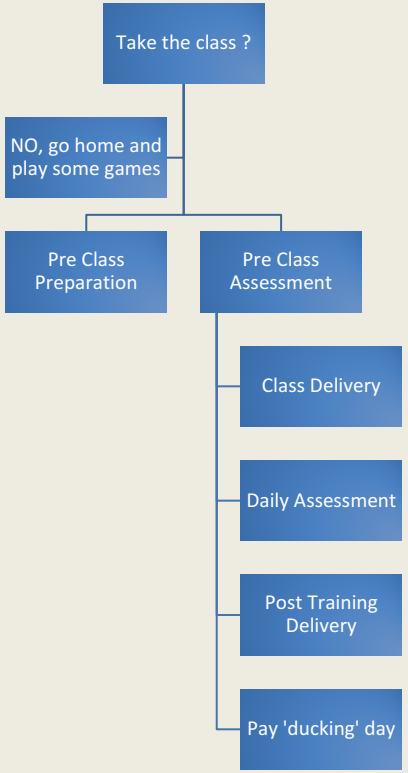
- Read all slides above, and close the ducking loophole

Overview

Always push your limits

Simplified Mindmaps



Q & A Sessions

Thank You